PETITION FOR A WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE NINTH CIRCUIT

Petitioner, Bryant R. Britt, prays that this Honorable Court issue its writ of certiorari to review the judgment of the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit entered March 4, 1982 on rending a decision against the appellant which is in conflict with other circuits of the court of appeals on the same matter.

OPINIONS BELOW

Petitioner, a black tenured school teacher with ten years seniority was denied reenstatement against a school district in a discrimination case on the grounds that he failed to exhaust the administrative remedy designed by the state. The Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit held that the Ninth Circuit has held that, "exhaustion is required where a teacher receives notice of dismissal for a future date and adequate administrative remedies are available to forestall the deprivation of his or her civil rights."

This case was dismissed by the District Court on March 5, 1981 on the conclusion of a Magistrate's Report and Recommendation.

JURISDICTION

The appellate jurisdiction of this Court is invoked persuant to the United States Constitution, Article III, Sections 1 and 2 with such regulations as the Congress shall make. Judgment was entered against the appellant by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals on March 4, 1982, and this petition is timely filed within 90 days thereafter.

QUESTIONS PRESENTED FOR REVIEW

1) Does this Courts decision in Monroe V. Pape (1961), 365 U.S. 167, 183, 81 S. Ct. 1731, 20 L. Ed. 2d 811; and Bivens V. Six Unknown Named Agents of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics, 465 F. 2d 1339, 1347 (2d Cir. 1972) require the exhaustion of the states administrative remedy in some circuits and not by other in a civil rights complaint?

2) If this case is remanded will it be necessary to have it decided by three judge court?

3) If state and federal funds were used in this case, will it be necessary to amend the complaint to include the state and federal government since it is not a class action, and since the federal government has been already aquitted in this matter in a separate complaint filed in the District Court on September 30, 1977,- Case number 77 3684 MMI (K). Magistrate Kronenberg has handled both cases.

CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS INVOLVED

Amendments I, III, V, VIII, and XIV of the U.S. Constitution were violated

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

1. Appellant seeks injunctive relief and damages, alleging that the appellees conspired to violate his constitutional rights in violation of 42 U. S. Code, Sections 1981, 1983, 1985 (3), 1986, and Section 2000 (d). He also alleged violation of California,s Civil and Education Codes.

2. Plaintiff alleges that he is a black citizen who had ten years of seniority with the Simi Valley Unified School District before he was given a notice of termination predicated upon an unusual method of discharge which was not according to the legal state layoff procedure as specified by state law.

3. The appellees defaulted in their obligation to support the appellant, and they directed stressful action against him over a period of three years for the purpose of ousting the appellant from his employment because he was a black citizen.

4. The appellees violated the appellant's privacy and had him excommunicated.

5. The appellees served the appellant with a 90-day Notice to improve, and a Notice to terminate his services within 30-days if he did not file for a hearing.

6. The appellant filed for a hearing and he received notice that a hearing would be held before a Commission of Professional Competence on July 3, 1975.

7. The appellant did not feel that the hearing could be fair; therefore, he resigned at the end of the school term.

8. After the appellant resigned, the appellees would not grant him any recommendations, and they had the state to investigate his competency with the use of a systems technique and the community until the present date.

REASONS FOR GRANTING THE WRIT

I.

The appellees employed an alternative method to deprive the appellant from his position under "Colors of state law" as follows:

California Stats. 1959, Ch. 2, P. 949, Sect 13447.

> "Where in any school year the average daily attendance in all of the schools of the district for the first six months in which school is in session shall have declined below the corresponding period of either of the previous two years , or whenever a particular kind of service is to be reduced or discontinued not later than the beginning of the following school year, and when in the opinion of the governing board of said district it shall become necessary by reason of such conditions to decrease the number of permanent employees in said district, the said governing board may terminate ~~of~~ not more than a corresponding percentage of the certificated employees of said district, permanent as well as probationary, at the close of the school year; provided, that the services of no permanent employee may be terminated under the provisions of this section while any probationary employee, or any other employee with less seniority, is retained to render a service which said permanent employee is certified to and competent to render.
> ... and services of said employees shall be terminated in the inverse of the order in which they were employed, as determined by the by the board...."

II.

The accusations held against the appellant were not sufficent to terminate a permanent employee in the absence of immoral conduct, the conviction of a felony or crime involving moral terpitude. 1959 Stats. Ch-2, P. 948, Sect. 13441. The only reason that the appellant was terminated is because he was one of two black teachers who taught in that school district.

III.

There were some probationary teachers in the district and many permanent teachers in the district with less seniority. Some of the teachers with less seniority were encouraging students to give the appellant trouble. The appellant was the only black teacher at the school.

IV.

The Commission of Professional Competence was a quasi-district or completely controlled by the school district by virture of its composition. It was part of the state judicial system and not purely administrative. Once accepted, it became res judicata to present the matter in the District Court.

V.

The Court of Appeals overlooked the fact that the appellee's motion to dismiss was opposed by the appellant's motion for an injunction which was supposed to have been presented before the appellee's motion to dismiss,but the date of presentation was changed by the Magistrate. The appellant pleads excusable neglect on the account that he is not an attorney.

VII.

Under 42 U.S.C. 1983, there is no requirement of the exhaustion of the administrative remedies .

Cornist V. Richland Paris School Board, et al., (1971) 448 F. 2d 594 (5 th Cir.)

Damico V. California, 389 U.S. 416, 88 S. Ct. 526, 19 L. Ed. 2d 647 (1967)

VIII.

All of the cases listed by the appellees were college cases and may not be governed by the same laws that secondary schools are governed by.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons expressed herein, the petitioner respectfully request the Supreme Court of the United States to issue a writ of certiorari to review and reverse the judgment of the Court of Appeals entered herein , remand the case back to the proper court without oral arguement because of the deprivation which the petitioner has suffered in his civil rights, render a decision of whether the case is to be decided by one judge on the district level or a court of three judges, render a decision on whether it would be to any advantage for the petitioner to amend the complaint to include the State of California or the federal government.

FOR THE NINTH CIRCUIT

BRYANT R. BRITT, Plaintiff-Appellant, vs. SIMI VALLEY UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT: John W. No. 81-5284 D.C. 877-4091-WPG(K) MEMORANDUM

Submitted: March 1, 1982
Decided: , 1982

Appeal from the United States District Court for the Central District of California
District Judge William P. Gray, Presiding

Before: WRIGHT, ALARCON and REINHARDT, Circuit Judges

Bryant Britt was employed as a tenured science teacher by the Simi Valley, California Unified School District from 1964 to 1975. During that time, a number of complaints concerning Britt's behavior were lodged by students, parents, teachers and administrators. After several meetings between Britt and the school's administrators, the school district issued a "Notice of Unprofessional Conduct and Incompetency" on December 17, 1974.

On April 29, 1975 the school board notified Britt that it would consider his dismissal at its next meeting and that he could attend with counsel or a union representative. Britt appeared and the board voted to dismiss him. He was given notice that the dismissal would take effect in 30 days unless he petitioned for a review hearing. Britt requested a hearing, and one was set for July 3, 1975 before a three-person panel.

Britt resigned his position on June 13, 1975. On November 1, 1977 he sued the school district and its officials, seeking relief under several sections of the Civil Rights Act, the U.S. Constitution and various California statutes. The defendants moved to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief could be granted. Britt responded with an ambiguous "Notice of Plaintiff that he will not Oppose Defendant's Motion to Dismiss his Complaint."

On December 17, 1980, a Magistrate's Report and Recommendation concluded that Britt's decision to resign and terminate the administrative proceedings foreclosed a Civil Rights Act suit. The parties were given 10 days to file objections. Britt did not respond, and the suit was dismissed on March 5, 1981.

On appeal Britt notes correctly that several Courts of Appeals have held that exhaustion of state administrative remedies is not required before bringing a civil rights suit. See generally, Hochman v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Newark, 534 F.2d 1094, 1097 (3d Cir. 1976). This court, however, has held that exhaustion is required where a teacher receives notice of dismissal for a future date and adequate administrative remedies are available to forestall the depri tion of his or her civil rights. Correa v. Nampa School Dist. No. 131, 645 F.2d 814 (9th Cir. 1981); Bignall v. Nort Idaho College, 538 F.2d 243 (9th Cir. 1976); Whitner v. Davi [illegible] F.2d 24, 28-29 (9th Cir. 1969).

The review panel had authority to set aside Britt's pending dismissal but Britt resigned before the scheduled date of review. He did not challenge the adequacy of the review procedure in the district court and we find no compelling reason to consider it for the first time on appeal.

The judgment is AFFIRMED.

BRYANT R. BRITT,

Petitioner,

vs.

SIMI VALLEY UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT, et al.,

Respondents.

Respondents' Brief in Opposition to the Petition for Certiorari to the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

Statement of Facts.

As pointed out in the decision of the Court of Appeals: (1) petitioner filed a notice that he would not oppose the subject motion to dismiss (Respondents' Appendix A, at p. 2, lines 7-9) and (2) petitioner failed to object in any manner to the recommended order of dismissal in the District Court proceedings below. (Respondents' Appendix A, at p. 2, lines 13-15.)

Further, as the Court of Appeals noted, and petitioner admits: (1) the school board notified him on April 29, 1979 that a board meeting would be held to discuss his dismissal and that he could attend with counsel or a union representative (Respondents' Appendix A, p. 1 at lines 27-30; Petition p. 3, n.5); (2) he subsequently received a notice of intention to dismiss unless he filed for a hearing (Respondents' Appendix A, p. 1 at lines 30-32; Petition p. 3, n.5); (3) he filed for a hearing which was set for July 3, 1975 (Respondents' Appendix A, at p. 1, lines 32-33; Petition, p. 3, n.6); and (4) he resigned from his teaching position prior to the date set for the hearing. (Respondents' Appendix A at p. 2, line 1; Petition at p. 3, n.7.)

ARGUMENT.

I.

Petitioner Consented to the Entry of the District Court Order of Dismissal.

Petitioner filed a notice that he would not oppose the subject motion to dismiss. (Respondents' Appendix A at p. 2, lines 7-9.)

As this Court asserted in an analogous context in Ackerman v. United States, 340 U.S. 193, 198 (1950):

> ". . . Petitioner made a considered choice not to appeal, . . . His choice was a risk, but calculated and deliberate and such as follows a free choice. Petitioner cannot be relieved of such a choice because hindsight seems to indicate to him that his decision not to appeal was probably wrong, . . . There must be an end to litigation someday, and free, calculated, deliberate choices are not to be relieved from."

Further, petitioner disregarded the clear admonition contained in the Magistrate's Report and Recommendation of dismissal, served on December 17, 1980, that:

> "Any party . . . shall, not later than 10 days after service upon him, file and serve a written statement of objections . . . Failure to so object within the time limit specified shall be deemed a consent to the recommendation . . ." (Emphasis added — LLH.)

Petitioner failed to file any objections and this case was dismissed on March 5, 1981. (Respondents' Appendix A at p. 2, lines 10-15.) As the Court in G. K. Properties v. Redevelopment Agency of the City of San Jose, 577 F.2d 645, 648-649 (9th Cir. 1978), asserted in pertinent part:

> "Since this objection to the dismissal was not asserted below, it may not be raised for the first time on this appeal." (Citations omitted.)

Absent an earlier objection . . . we cannot say that the district court erred in dismissing the action . . ."

See also Wellman v. Jellison, 593 F.2d 876, 879 (9th Cir. 1979);

Smith v. Stone, 308 F.2d 15, 17 (9th Cir. 1962); and Link v. Wabash, 370 U.S. 626, 639-642 (1962).

II.

Petitioner Failed to Raise Any of the Questions Presented in His Petition in the District Court Below.

The instant case raises no question warranting review by this Court. The entire Petition is completely devoid of any issues that were advanced in the District Court below.

As this Court held in Dothard v. Rawlinson, 433 U.S. 321, 323 n.1 (1976):

". . . Not having been raised in the District Court, that issue is not before us."

See Adickes v. Kress & Co., 398 U.S. 144, 147 n.2;

Irvine v. California, 347 U.S. 128, 129.

See also United States v. Lovasco, 431 U.S. 782, 788 n.7 (1976).

Moreover, in defiance of the Revised Rules of the Supreme Court of the United States, Rule 21(h), petitioner has failed to specify the manner in which or the stage of proceedings in either the court of the first instance or the appellate court at which the alleged federal questions were raised. The conclusion to be drawn from petitioner's avoidance of Rule 21(h) is that petitioner cannot demonstrate that any of the presently alleged federal questions was timely and properly raised so as to give this Court jurisdiction.

III.

Contrary to Petitioner's Contention, There Is No Conflict Between the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals' Decision Herein and the Cases Cited in the Petition.

As this Court stated in National Labor Relations Board v. Pittsburg Steamship Co., 340 U.S. 498, 502:

> ". . . Certiorari is granted only . . . in cases where there is a real and embarrassing conflict of opinion and authority between the circuit courts of appeal. Layne v. Bowler Corp. v. Western Well Works, 261 U.S. 387, 393; Revised Rules of the Supreme Court of the United States, Rule 38(5)."

Petitioner relies upon two decisions (Bivens v. Six Unknown Named Agents of Federal Bureau of Narcotics, 409 F.2d 718 (2nd Cir. 1969) (incorrectly cited by petitioner) and Cornist v. Richland Parish School Board, 448 F.2d 594 (5th Cir. 1971)) to support the basis of his Petition that the decision below "is in conflict with other circuits of the Court of Appeals on the same matter." (Petition, p. 1.)

However, petitioner's reliance upon Bivens, supra, is misplaced. The decision originally rendered by the Second Circuit Court of Appeals was reversed by this Court in Bivens v. Six Unknown Named Agents of Federal Bureau of Narcotics, 403 U.S. 388 (1970).

Further Bivens, unlike the instant case, involved an action allegedly arising out of an unreasonable search and seizure committed by federal agents in violation of petitioner's Fourth Amendment Rights. As this Court asserted at page 397:

> "The question is merely whether petitioner, if he can demonstrate an injury consequent upon the violation by federal agents of his Fourth Amendment rights, is entitled to redress his injury . . . Having concluded that petitioner's complaint states a cause of > action under the Fourth Amendment . . . we hold that petitioner is entitled to recover money damages for any injuries he has suffered as a result of the agents' violation of the Amendment."

Petitioner herein has never raised any question even remotely similar to the issue addressed by this Court in Bivens; thus, petitioner's claim that Bivens is in conflict with the decision in the instant case lacks merit.

Petitioner's reliance upon Cornist v. Richland Parish School Board, is also misplaced. Cornist involved an action by a teacher who charged that her employment had been unlawfully terminated. The district court found that plaintiff's dismissal was based on causes other than desegregation and dismissed the complaint for lack of jurisdiction. The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals noted that a hearing was conducted to consider the Superintendent's recommendation that the appellant be dismissed and the board subsequently voted to terminate her services.

In contradistinction to the facts in Cornist, the petitioner herein demanded a hearing but admittedly resigned from his teaching position prior to the scheduled hearing.

Even assuming, arguendo, that this Court concludes that the facts are indistinguishable, there is no real conflict between Cornist and the decision in the instant case.

In Cornist, at page 596, the Court pointed out:

> "The only issue before us is whether under 42 U.S.C. §1983, a person who alleges a violation of civil rights under color of state law must exhaust existing state court remedies prior to prosecuting an action in federal court." (Emphasis added — LLH.)

The issue of exhaustion of state administrative remedies, as distinct from state judicial remedies, was never presented or decided in Cornist.

Petitioner herein never raised any issue of exhaustion of state judicial and/or administrative remedies in the District Court proceedings below.

Similarly, contrary to the residual contention arising by inference from the Petition, there is no real conflict between the decision rendered in the instant case and the decisions of this Court in the two remaining cited cases, Monroe v. Pape, 365 U.S. 167 (1961) and Damico v. California, 389 U.S. 416 (1967).

Monroe involved an action arising out of an alleged unreasonable search and seizure conducted by police officers in petitioner's home. This Court focused upon the meaning of the "under color of" state law provision in the Civil Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. §1983. The primary issue presented was whether plaintiff's complaint stated a cause of action even though defendant police officers acted without any authority under state law.

Petitioner in the instant case has never raised any question similar to the principal issue addressed by this Court in Monroe. Further, the issue of exhaustion of state administrative remedies was not before this Court in Monroe.

Damico, supra, involved an action by welfare recipients attacking the constitutionality of state welfare laws.

In contrast to the facts in Damico, petitioner in the instant case has never challenged the constitutionality of any California state law and/or regulation at any stage of the proceedings. Indeed, as the Ninth Circuit pointed out in its decision herein, petitioner did not even attempt to challenge the adequacy of the review procedure in the district court below and thus the Court of Appeal found no compelling reason to consider it for the first time on appeal. (Respondents' Appendix A at p. 2, lines 30-31 and p. 3, line 1.)

Petitioner's solitary attempt herein to set forth any facts to establish the alleged inadequacy is that "the appellant did not feel that the hearing could be fair." (Petition, p. 3, n.7.) This bare conclusionary allegation simply lacks merit.

Finally, petitioner has not and cannot frame any viable argument that the decision rendered by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals herein was incorrect and/or unsupported by other Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals decisions. Correa v. Nampa School Dist. No. 131, 645 F.2d 814 (9th Cir. 1981); Bignall v. North Idaho College, 538 F.2d 243 (9th Cir. 1976); Whitner v. Davis, 410 F.2d 24, 28-29 (9th Cir. 1969).

Conclusion.

For the reasons expressed herein, it is respectfully submitted that petitioner's request for the issuance of a writ of certiorari be denied.

United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

Bryant R. Britt, Plaintiff-Appellant, vs. Simi Valley Unified School District: John W. Duncan; George Hawkins; Robert Marcus; Allen Jacobs; Kenneth Ashton; Frederick Riess; Viola Brooks; Lewis Roth; Stephen Hogg; Sandra Binns; Helen E. Carrico; and David McCamy, Defendants-Appellees. No. 81-5284, D.C.—#77-4091-WPG(K)

Submitted: March 1, 1982, Decided: ..., 1982.

Filed March 4, 1982.

Appeal from the United States District Court for the Central District of California, District Judge William P. Gray, Presiding.

Before: WRIGHT, ALARCON and REINHARDT, Circuit Judges.

Bryant Britt was employed as a tenured science teacher by the Simi Valley, California Unified School District from 1964 to 1975. During that time, a number of complaints concerning Britt's behavior were lodged by students, parents, teachers and administrators. After several meetings between Britt and the school's administrators, the school district issued a "Notice of Unprofessional Conduct and Imcompetency" on December 17, 1974.

On April 29, 1975 the school board notified Britt that it would consider his dismissal at its next meeting and that he could attend with counsel or a union representative. Britt appeared and the board voted to dismiss him. He was given notice that the dismissal would take effect in 30 days unless he petitioned for a review hearing. Britt requested a hearing, and one was set for July 3, 1975 before a three-person panel.

Britt resigned his position on June 13, 1975. On November 1, 1977 he sued the school district and its officials, seeking relief under several sections of the Civil Rights Act, the U.S. Constitution and various California statutes. The defendants moved to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief could be granted. Britt responded with an ambiguous "Notice of Plaintiff that he will not Oppose Defendant's Motion to Dismiss his Complaint."

On December 17, 1980, a Magistrate's Report and Recommendation concluded that Britt's decision to resign and terminate the administrative proceedings foreclosed a Civil Rights Act suit. The parties were given 10 days to file objections. Britt did not respond, and the suit was dismissed on March 5, 1981.

On appeal Britt notes correctly that several Courts of Appeals have held that exhaustion of state administrative remedies is not required before bringing a civil rights suit. See generally, Hochman v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Newark, 534 F.2d 1094, 1097 (3d Cir. 1976). This court, however, has held that exhaustion is required where a teacher receives notice of dismissal for a future date and adequate administrative remedies are available to forestall the deprivation of his or her civil rights. Correa v. Nampa School Dist. No. 131, 645 F.2d 814 (9th Cir. 1981); Bignall v. North Idaho College, 538 F.2d 243 (9th Cir. 1976); Whitner v. Davis, 410 F.2d 24, 28-29 (9th Cir. 1969).

The review panel had authority to set aside Britt's pending dismissal but Britt resigned before the scheduled date of review. He did not challenge the adequacy of the review procedure in the district court and we find no compelling reason to consider it for the first time on appeal.

The judgment is AFFIRMED.
